

Updated Message from the Gale Free Library- March 24, 2020

The Gale Free Library is taking the health of its staff and patrons very seriously in light of recent developments. To minimize the possible spread of illness, it is necessary to temporarily close the building to the public.

At the moment, staff are not available on site to answer phone calls. We are available by text and email for questions you might have.

Among the services that we will continue to provide are:

- Wireless internet access available outside building (password is posted on front door)
- Reference service, via text and email
- Access to digital materials, including movies, music, books and magazines
- Children's services, including reference and readers advisory questions

We will be communicating regularly regarding accessing our services, and updating you with new information as it comes in.

Ways to stay in touch with us:

Phone: (508) 210-5560 (Staff are not available to answer, but message with updated information will play)
